MORE LETTERS TO "BUNNIE."

MILLIONAIRE ARBUCKLE'S TENDER EFFU-SIONS READ IN COURT.

Miss Campbell Says That He Slezed the Correspondence, but She Had Taken Copies -Reproaches for Postponing the Marriage -Mr. Arbuckle's Sister Objected to the Bagagement-Under Cross-Examination.

The trial of the suit of Miss Clara Camp. bell against Charles Arbuckle, the wholesale coffee merchant and millionaire, for breach of promise of marriage was continued before Justice Beach in Part IV. of the Supreme

When Miss Campbell appeared in court to-day her stylish attire was almost hidden by a fine plush coat. On her head was a little bonnet of bright blue velvet. She was accompanied by two female friends.

She resumed the witness-stand this morning and identified several letters which ex-Judge Fullerton read. They were from Mr. Arbuckle and were couched in the softest, most endearing terms. During their reading plaintiff's face wore an extremely busithe plaintiff's face wore an extremely busi-nesslike expression.

The letters from Mr. Arbuckle to "Bun-nie" were full of terms of endearment, but in each was some unfavorable comment on her taste for "stagey" people, for riding in the front seats of cars, and for acting more like a man than a woman. In one letter he complains that her notes are too short and Oh, Bunnie! If I could only rest my head in your lap and have a good cry!

The defendant arrived in court late, and Miss Campbell's female support glared upon

He was confused, and blushed violently when his sweetly sentimental effusions were read, and was evidently much relieved when the reading ceased and ex-Judge Fullerton proceeded to examine the fair recipient of the letters.

"In May or June, 1882." Miss Campbell said, "I visited Mr. Arbuckle's brother, John, at his request. Charles said then that he had told his mother and sister of our engagement, and his sister, who had no children, objected.

"Then I said to give her something—we had too much for ourselves. Shortly after this I went to Washington and left my trunks with Mr. Arbuckle. He had the keys and opened the trunks. Judge Fullerton—Have you ever seen those letters since? A. (Emphatically) No., sir.

Q. When you and Mr. Arbnekie were together, how did he talk? A. Very much like his letters.

Q. What did you say to him about your life in linly? A. I talked very freely.

Q. What took you there? A. I had a sister and two nisces there at school.

Q. Did he say anything about yeur improper conduct? A. No. sir.

Q. When did you commence keeping copies or your letters? A. Alter he said my letters were shorter than his and said that I had said things which I knew I had not said.

On an objection by Mr. Parsons to a question.

On an objection by Mr. Parsons to a question as to preparations by her for the wedding, a letter dated Nov. 1, 1883, was read. In it she complained to her affianced that he had at first said that the marriage should be in May, 1883; then in the fall, and that now he put it off till January of the new year. Then Miss Campbell continued:

Mr. Parsons cross-examined. Miss Campbell explained that "4-1-11 P-87" in pencil in a letter from Mr. Arbuckle to her meant that it was postmarked April 1 at 11 p. m. and was No. 87 of his letters to her.

A reporter's note-book of about two hundred pages was placed in the hands of the witness. It was written full and contained

Bent His Wife and His Big Brother Beat Him. said Annie Kiefer, of 211 Third street, to her husband, Michael, a barber, at Essex Market this morning.

It was on New Year's morning that the assault occurred, and the wife was shouting for help when her brother-in-law entered the house to make a New Year's call.

'My big brother," said the husband, "knocked the life out of me and my wife said that she was glad." He was held for examination.

A Watch-Suntcher Collared.

Late on the night of Jan. 8 J. W. Reid, a pat-tern-maker, residing at 529 West Thirty-ninth street, was followed to the door of his house by two men, one of whom struck him a blow with two men, one of whom struck him a blow with a sand-bag, which caused him to reel over on the stoop and lose control of himself for a few seconds. The men stole from him his gold watch. James Hughes, aged twenty-three, of 535 Eighth avenue, was arrested yesterday, with a pawn-tloket for the watch. Hughes said he got the ticket from a companion of his named William Mason. Hughes was held in $1,500 bail at the Jefferson Market Court this morning.

Corron.—There was a lively switching market in cotton this morning and 18,000 hales were sold on the opening call at Jam., 10,38; Peb., 10,49; March, 10,60; April, 10,70; May, 10,80; June, 10,50; Juny, 10,50; August, 11. There was an advance of 1 to 2 points just after the call, but this was soon lost and the market became steady at a decline of 1 point on the near months and an advance of 1 point in far months as compared with last night's close.

Copper.—Futures had a raily this morning on better cables, and the opening prices, showing an advance of 15 points as compared with hast night's closing figures, were as follows: Jan., 15,75; Peb., 15,50; March, 15,40; April, 16,30; May, 16,20; June, 15,25; Aug., 14,45. The Hayre market was firm at an advance of 15 print in the fatures.

PETHOLEUM.—After the break of nearly 5 points in oil yesterday there was a natural reaction today. The opening price was 92% a 92%, about yesterday's closing figure, but the market was soon put up to 183%, where it remained for some time. Just before boon there was snother flurry and up the price wint to 34%. Apparently a big onsiness was being done, but close observers say that ninetents of it was laundried. It is claimed that a few may eno other corners and the little speculators have no chance. Only a few gudgeons were captured by the clique in yesterday's onslaught.

COL. FELLOWS'S TRIAL BUREAU.

Hurder Cases Assigned to It to be Prepared for the Courts.

The establishment of Col. Fellows's trial bureau in the District-Attorney's office has resulted in an immediate delay in the trial of the capital cases. This delay, however, will not be of long duration and the occupants of "Murderers' Row" in the Tombs pants of "Murderers' How" in the Tombs will be soon granted the privilege of meeting a judge and jury.

All of the murder cases have been handed over to Deputy Assistant Andrew D. Parker, who is the chief of the new trial bureau, and he will personally examine and prepare the briefs in each, while the cases of a minor character will be assigned by him to other deputies.

character will be assigned by him to other deputies.

The first case which he will consider is that of Longobardi, the Italian slayer of Johnny Barrett. This case will be tried by Col. Fellows personally, assisted by Mr. Parker. It was set down in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for next Monday, but will be returned to the Court of General Sessions and tried before Recorder Smyth.

With this disposition of the Longobardi case there will be no day calendar in the Oyer and Terminer, and it is quite probable that that Court will adjourn over the month. It will be impossible to move a retrial of Jacob Sharp, District-Attorney Fellows says, until Mr. Semple shall have disposed of the other boodle cases of O'Neill and McQuade in the Court of Appeals and the General Term respectively.

JANAUSCHEK'S DAMAGE SUIT.

Was a Witness Offered $2,000 to Testify in Her Behalt ?

ISPECIAL TO THE WORLD, NEWPORT, R. L., Jan. 4. -In the United States Circuit Court to-day the trial of the suit for $20,000 amages brought by Mme. Fransesca Romana Janauschek, the actress, against Henry Bull, jr., of the Perry House, was begun. The hotel adjoint the Opera-House, and on May 17 last the actress and her company while here made the Perry House their headquarters. Shortly before midnight Mme. Janauschek left her room to go to that of Mr. Carder, who she testified was ill. She was there but a few minutes and entered the corridor, which she says was not lighted, and walked, as she supposed, towards her room, but really towards a stairway, down which she fell and broke her wrist. starway, down which she fell and broke her wrist. She says she has suffered great pecuniary loss, sacrificing all her engagements until Nov. 4, and that she still suffered physically and was unable to raise her right arm in any of her plays, and had been compelled to give up the production of "Bleak House."

The testimony was in part borne out by Alex H. Stuart, of Brooklya, the financial agent of Janausohek. Mrs. Henry Bull, third daughter-in-law of Mr. Bull, who is not on friendly terms with the family, surprised her father-in-law by amening of Mr. Bull, who is not on friendly terms with the family, surprised her rather-in-law by appearing on the stand. She swore that the gas was not lighted, but had to admit on cross-examination that she had written Mrs. Bull, ir. that Januschek's friends had offered her $2,000 to testify.

A letter was produced from her to Bull, in which she also dectared that Januschek's representatives were trying to induce her to testify. The witness created a bad impression.

Messrs. Abel and McKe, of New York, well known in sporting circles, gave evidence for Bull, declaring the gas was lighted. They were in the houses at the time. The evidence is all in, and a verdict will be rendered to-morrow.

"A KING SOLOMON'S DECISION."

It Is Rendered by Mayor Hewitt, Who Also A stout, comfortably clad middle-aged woman who did not give her name, called upon Mayor Hewitt yesterday accompanied by her daughter, a child about twelve years of age, and said that the child had taken her pocketbook containing $12 and started out to purchase a pair of earrings for herself. The child, the mother said, went into the Chatham square, requested to be shown some ear-rings and picked out a pair for which she was asked 33. She averred that she could not give more than $1. Handing the man a five-dollar bill she received but $1 in change, being told that she had laid down a two-dollar bill.

but $1 in change, being told that she had laid down a two-dollar bill.

After hearing the story the Mayor sent at once for Moran and two of his clerks. Moran denied the whole story and said that the jewelry was not bought in his place.

"Pliesettle this matter right here," said the Mayor, taking a five-dollar bill from his pocketbook and handling it to the woman. "There's your money, and I hope you will keep a more watchful eye on this place, and perhaps I shall have $5 worth of satisfaction some day in revoking this man's license." Then turning to the little girl he said: "Now, little girl, I have returned this money to your mother to save you from going to the bad, and I hope you will be a better girl hereafter and not meadle with what does not belong to you."

Then he gave the carrings to a detective and told him to see if he could find anything like them in Park row, Chatham square or the Bowery.

"That was a King Solomon's decision," he remarked, laughingly, to the reporters, "but if the Mayor bad to make many of them he wouldn't have much money left,"

PIRATE CONRAD MISSING.

MISS ANNIE SUMMERVILLE'S SUDDEN FLIGHT FROM THIS CITY.

She Left Only a Note Saying that if She Did Not Appear on Monday She Would be at the Bottom of the Lake-Divorce Proecedings the Cause of All the Trouble-She is Expected Home Again Next

"I am in very great trouble and have left the city. If I am not on the boards again Monday, I shall be at the bottom of the lake. A. S." This startling sentence at the bottom of a short note written on scented blue paper met the eye of Manager Charles E. Rice, of the Bijou Opera - House, last evening.

Mr. Rice was inexpressibly surprised and and pained, for the note was in the handwriting of his principal actress, Miss Annie Summerville.

MISS SUMMERVILLE. It had been deliv-miss summerville. It had been delivered in the forenoon, but Mr. Rice was not there at the time, and it was 6 o'clock in the evening when he received it.

Mr. Rice at once sent around to Miss Summerville's place of residence, 138 West Twenty-ninth street, and found that the note had a firm basis in fact. Miss Summerville had left for Chicago at 8 o'clock in the morning.

had left for Chicago at 8 o'clock in the morning.

The emergency was a serious one.

For three months steadily Miss Summerville's beauty and sprightliness had caused the bald-headed old men and the fashionable young men about town to secure the stalls and boxes nightly and her name still headed the cast of characters as "Conrad, the Corsair," familiarly known as "The Scourge of the Seas, ironical and Byronical."

At the door of the theatre was the usual profusion of framed photographs representing Miss Summerville in frequent changes of costume as "Conrad the Corsair," sometimes in tights, again in the flowing robes of the harem and again in the jewelled white satin dress and gold scimitar of the pirate chief, but always lovely, fascinating and bewitching.

white satin dress and gold scimitar of the pirate chief, but always lovely, fascinating and bewitching.

The curtain rose on a large and expectant audience, but when the Oriental Slave Bazaar in Stamboul was disclosed and the strains of "I am a Pirate King" came as a prelude from the orchestra the ripe beauty of the old time, Conrad, was missing.

The place of the favorite singer was taken at a moment's notice by Miss Kate Uart, who formerly played the humble rôle of Ganem, Captain of the Pacha's guard.

Very few people were enlightened last night as to the cause of Miss Summerville's disappearance, and to-day there was a general disposition to keep the secret close.

An Evenino World reporter, however, called at Miss Summerville's residence this morning, and obtained an interview with Mrs. E. A. Harvey, the actress's companion and housekeeper.

Mrs. E. A. Harvey, the actress's companion and housekeeper.

Persistent questioning brought out the fact that Mr. Edward Chapman, Miss Summerville's husband, from whom she had been separated two years, had been troubling her very much of late with threats that he would deprive her of her child, Edna, a beautiful little girl of four years.

"Miss Summerville began a suit for divorce in Chicago about a year ago," continued Mrs. Harvey, "and he threatened to take her child away from her if she did not cease the suit.

"She told him that he should never have the child, but begged him to stay away from her.

"He is forty years of age and she in only twenty-two. Miss Summerville is a very quiet and sensible woman, very fond of her home, while he is unsteady in his habits.

"On Tuesday night Miss Summerville was very much agitated and partly hysterical. She told me that she had to go to Chicago to testify in her divorce suit and was afraid that her husband would attack her character unjustly and would try to get little Edna given into his charge.

"She wrote the letter to Mr. Rice while she was hysterical. I don't believe that she really meant what she said.

"I expect her back next Monday, and feel sure that she will go back to her place in the place."

Mr. Sam. Harrison, business manager for the Corsair Company, said that he had telegraphed to Chicago this morning for news of Miss Summerville, but had as yet received Miss Summerville gave no notice of her intended journey, and he could not help but think it very strange. He had heard of the divores suit, and the actress's trouble with her husband, Mr. Chapman, but he thought that separation had been agreed to and that th matter was settled.

Mr. Harrison said that the rumor that Miss Summerville's departure was due to rivalry between her and Miss Louise Montague was without the slightest foundation. Miss Montague and Miss Summerville never had any quarrel.

Manager Charles E. Rice left for Boston last evening. He will not return until tomorrow. He took Miss Summerville's letter with him.

dent Corbin in Philadelphia. INPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5 .- Reports from th Schuylkill mines of the Reading company show no change in the situation this morn-President Austin Corbin is in the city and is expected to have something to say miners within a short time.

President Austin Corbin, of the Reading Company, is still in Philadelphia, where he is engaged, it is said, in preparing an address to the striking miners, which it is expected will be issued to-day.

Mr. Corbin, according to his representative here, will make no concessions whatever to the strikers, but will insist that the terms of the agreement of last September be carried out as strictly by the workmen as it has been by the company. The company, he claims, has ace'd in good faith ali along, but that the miners have not kept up to their agreement. No word has been received from Mr. Corbin. The latest news received in this city from the mines is to the effect that many of the men are returning to work against the orders of the leaders.

"We have heard a good deal in Paris about what official dinners, followed by receptions, every Thursday throughout the month. On the 5th inst. he will dine the Diplomatic Corps; on the 12th inst., the Commanding Generals of the Army; on the 19th, the Ministers and members of the Committees of the two Houses of Congress, and on the 25th, a selection of Senstors and Deputies. I may add, moreover, that these dinners are going to be grand things. Our new President believes in the influence of liberal nospitality. In the month of Petruary there will be no official dinners, because during that month President Carnot means to have extensive alterations carried out at the Elysée, and temporary annexes will be thrown out into the gardens, so as to have more room for the first Elysée bail. This is fixed for Feb. 9. The balls are to be very brilliant, and as many people as possible will be asked."

Although the General Master Workman was a very sick man this morning, he granted a brief audience to the committee appointed by the Philisteiphia and Reading employees and the Mineral Association. The members of the committee were Messra, John L. Lee and Charles J. Farney. John W. Hayes, Secretary of the General Executive Board, was present during the interview, which was of a very friendly nature. Owing to the illness of Mr. Powderly, no serious discussion of the committee's business took place, and after a mere interchange of opinion and a short statement concerning the present emergency the committee withorew, concluding to have the districts that are interested in the fight with the Reading Railroad Company wait upon the General Executive Board at Philadelphia on Monday next for the purpose of making a detailed report and requesting the co-operation of the order in the stragger. Notwithstanding the assertions made by many newspapers that Mr. Powderly had delivered an expression of opinion on the strike, he desires The World correspondent to publish an emphatic denial, as he has not spoken a word one way or another on the subject to newspaper men or others.

The prisoners are Charles Weverich, of 55 Greenwich avenue: Charles Ertz, of 66 Greenwich avenue: Adam Willershanson and Leo Merkent, of 60 Greenwich avenue, and Theodore Ferger, of 62 Greenwich avenue.

These lads, none of whom is more than twenty years old, were arrested by Detective Sergts, McGinnes, Crowley and McGuire at their homes last night. They were locked up at Police Headquarters, and late this morning were taken down to the Coroner's According to the story told by Inspector

Byrnes, on New Year's night the five lads were standing outside of 60 Greenwich avenve, all more or less under the influence of liquor, and all skylarking and so blocking the side walk. About 10 o'clock Hannah, who was unknown to the party, came staggering along and, noticing a group wrestling on the sidewalk, cried:

" Here, you fellows, do you want the whole sidewalk?" The lads retorted, and then Hannah exclaimed; "If you don't get away from here I'll lick the whole lot of you."

As he said this he put up his hands as if about to fight.

At this moment Charles Weyerich sprang at him and struck him, knocking him into the gutter. Then it was that Hannah, by striking his head against the curb, received the fracture of the skull which caused his Weyerich, impelled alike by the force of his blow and by intoxication, fell over upon Hannah and for nearly ten minutes there was a struggle between the two men for the sua struggle between the two men for the supremacy.

Finally Hannah seemed to be getting the better of the fight, when Charles Ertz ran to Weyerich's assistance and pounded his victim. Then, so the police say, the rest of the party kicked Hannah until Theodore Ferger got the now badly used up man to his feet and led him aside.

But the fight was not yet all out of Hannah. As he stood there, half unconscious, he began calling the crowd names, and the lads were about to attack him again, when Ferger determinedly interposed and warned them off.

Ferger then led Hannah away, and subse

Ferger then led Hannah away, and subsequently went to his home.

Some time after this a butcher who keeps a store at the corner of West Eleventh street and Greenwich avenue saw a man, who proved to be Hannah, seated in a doorway. The butcher went up to him, and found him to be dazed and bleeding.

By a singular coincidence the butcher bethought himself of Charles Ertz's mother as a person who was so kindly as to be glad to help an injured stranger, and he took Hannah to her house. While Mrs. Ertz was sponging the stranger's head her son entered and recognized Hannah. He did not think the man was hurt much.

Finally, Hannah's wounds being dressed, the man was nort much.

Finally, Hanuah's wounds being dressed, he was led out of Mrs. Ertz's house by the butcher, who put him in charge of two young men who volunteered to take him home One of these young men rang the bell, and when Mrs. Hannah came to the door the injured man said: "I want you to thank these gentlemen, my dear. They have been very kind to me."

very kind to me."

Mrs. Hannah thanked the young men and they departed. The number of persons who knew of the occurrence prevented the crime from remaining a secret, and so when Inspector Byrnes detailed Detective-Sergt. McGinnis to work up the case, the latter did it with comparative ease.

When the lads were arrested last night the Inspector sent Ferger up to West Twenty second street, where he identified Hannah's body. Three Men Accused of Burglary.

J. S. Brown & Son's Celebrated Linens The sale now in progress at B. Altman & Co.'s tore on Sixth avenue, is a genuine surprise. For the first time in the history of the manufacturers have their goods been sold under regular prices. The result was achieved only by the purchase of several thou-and dollars' worth of the linen, and the customers of the house are now resping the fruits of Aliman & Co.'s enterprise.

The West Twentieth street police want an owner for 190 yards of twilled sik, marked "Merveil-leux." that they say has been stolen. Recitations in the sign language will be given at the 7. 45 r. M. E. Iphany service to-morrow in St. Anny Free Church, Eighteenth street, near Fifth
